

Leicestershire Industrial History Society

founded 1969

Stephenson's Lifting Bridge, Frog Island, Leicester, c. 1937 (c) Roger Hutchinson 2009

Our Aims

- To encourage the study and recording of the industrial past of Leicestershire;
- To arrange talks, visits and field days concerned with industrial archaeology and history;
- To assist members and others with fieldwork and research;
- To publish and disseminate news and research concerned with the industrial history of Leicestershire;
- To build a library, increasingly digital, of relevant publications, documentary material and images.

We are a lively and friendly Society with lots of interesting things going on. Why not join us? No previous experience or knowledge necessary.
